

Some Publications of interest:

FACES FROM THE PAST: Profiles of Those Who Led Restoration of the South's Forests. For those with an interest in history, this is a lovely little publication that connects some of the faces and names we have read about.

This link leads to a list of protocols from the USFS website. For those looking for definitions or procedures that might work for their organization, perhaps it is worth a glance.

This link is the Relascope manual from the new company that owns and distributes the Relascope. Many of you already know that the family that developed it more than 50 years ago had sold the rights. Some products from the old company are no longer available, such as the micro-adjustment mechanism that could be used on a tripod.
